WHY WE ARE HERE TODAY

Last year at the Annual Meeting of the East Hartland Cemetery Association it was voted that a Bronze Tablet be procured and placed on the old Millstone in the Cemetery, commemorating the fact that it was owned by Titus Hayes, official miller of the town of Hartland, and used by him to grind grain for Colonial and Revolutionary War Soldiers.

A Committee, consisting of David N. Gaines, George S. Godard and Edward P. Jones was appointed to carry out the provisions of this vote. The present Patriotic Celebration is the result of their labors.

An effort has been made to produce a picture that will remain in the minds of all those present, but especially in the minds of the younger generation, represented by the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, the 4-H Club and the School Children. In producing this picture there have been combined the efforts of men and women who have achieved distinction in their several stations, as well as those whose life is all before them.

The presence of the Governor, the Lieutenant-Governor and State officers, together with the highest officials of many of our State and National patriotic societies indicates the importance which they have attached to this Celebration. In order to perpetuate the memory of the day and keep before the people who will visit East Hartland the patriotism inspired by the National Emblem, Dr. and Mrs. Irving H. Berg have given the beautiful flag-pole and flag unfurled for the first time today. The men and women of the Colony of Connecticut were heroes and patriots, and in their work of establishing independence and an organized State, the people of Hartland fulfilled their part with honor and distinction.

HARTLAND'S REVOLUTIONARY WAR RECORD

In order that it might be known how many Hartland men served in the Revolutionary War a study has been made of same, and it has been found that 356 Hartland men responded to the call. In this list are also included the names of those who lived in that part of Barkhamsted (one mile square) which was set off to the First Ecclesiastical Society of Hartland by the General Court of the Colony. It also includes a few names of settlers who lived just over the line in other towns, but who were buried in Hartland Cemeteries. Not all of these men lived in Hartland at any one time during the War, but all are believed to have lived here at some time.

This list is largely the work of Mr. David N. Gaines, Town Clerk and Historian of Hartland, who has given years to the research work needed for its production. He has been assisted by Mr. George S. Godard, State Librarian; Mr. Charles R. Hale, Chairman National Committee Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, on marking soldiers' graves, and Mr. Edward P. Jones.

Among the 356 Hartland men there were found to be one Colonel; one Lieutenant Colonel; four Majors; twenty-two Captains and eighty-eight other officers above the rank of Private. There were also two hundred and forty Privates. In setting up "The Old Continental Army" for this celebration, these men have been divided into twenty companies with eleven men each, and two companies with ten men each. Each company has been given one captain and four other officers—all of whom actually held the position indicated. There being four Majors the companies were divided into two battalions with six companies each, and two battalions with five companies each. According to this arrangement the following is the

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION REGARDING THE OLD CONTINENTAL ARMY

When the copy of this programme was sent to the printer one sheet was held back for revision. The omission in the proof was noticed too late to be inserted in its proper place. This sheet has been added in order that the list of Revolutionary Officers might be made complete. There has also been added on the following page a statement regarding the Celebration.

In the Roster of the old Continental Army there should have been included the names of all the officers above the rank of Captain. These are as follows:

Colonel	ISRAEL JONES, JR.
Lieutenant Colonel	BENJAMIN HUTCHENS
Major of 1st Battalion, Companies 1 to 6	DANIEL CONE
Major of 2nd Battalion, Companies 7 to 12	URIEL HOLMES
Major of 3rd Battalion, Companies 13 to 17	JOHN SKINNER
Major of 4th Battalion, Companies 18 to 22	THEODORE WOODBRIDGE
	(A member of the Cincinnati Society)

Since the printed list of soldiers was compiled three Hartland men have been added. Probably more will be found later. Their names are as follows:

Baxter, William	E. H. 31A
Griswold, Caleb
Ruick, Owen	E. H. 92-186A

STATEMENT REGARDING THE CELEBRATION

At ten o'clock in the forenoon people began to arrive from all directions. The State Police very satisfactorily supervised all traffic and parking. The Boy Scouts arrived at 10:15 from Hartford in fourteen buses, each holding thirty-four Scouts. They went at once to Gould's Lake where they struck camp and prepared dinner, which they served to Governor and Mrs. Trumbull. The Girl Scouts stopped at their camp for lunch, and arrived shortly after 12:30 P. M.

At 12:25 the State Police reported that one thousand automobiles had been parked at that time. As this number did not include the Putnam Phalanx, the Boy or Girl Scouts, the musicians and a large number who arrived later, and as there were over one thousand persons in the procession, it would appear that six thousand persons would be quite a conservative estimate of the number present.

At one o'clock the Governor and his party arrived and took their places on the reviewing stand. Beside the Governor and Mrs. Trumbull were Lieutenant Governor Rogers and Mrs. Rogers, other state officials and the executive committee.

The Putnam Phalanx formed and gave an exhibition drill before the Governor. This was followed by the formation of the Old Continental Army consisting of 356 Boy Scouts, 116 of whom were officers. The column reached from the Granville Road to a point east of the cemetery gate. This was one of the most impressive events of the day. The Scouts were dressed in khaki and marched four abreast in twenty-two companies with their officers. The fact that each Scout represented a Revolutionary Soldier made the whole appearance very impressive.

The different divisions took position on the north side of the Green facing south. The Putnam Phalanx were in front of Tolson's Tavern, and the school children were east of the cemetery gate with the other divisions between.

In the massing of the colors, two bands and two drum corps played while the fifteen large flags were being advanced. Unfurling the Flag by Boy and Girl Scouts after its presentation by Dr. Berg, and the acceptance by Judge Howard, was a beautiful sight.

No wind was blowing as it was raised to the top of the pole, but the instant the bugles stopped, a breeze carried the flag straight out away from the flagpole.

(This page was printed and inserted after the Celebration)

After the massing of the colors all the divisions with music playing passed in review before the Governor.

. In the march to the cemetery the State Police and the Governor's party headed the procession, which was so long that the first section was obliged to enter the cemetery in order that the last division, which was formed east of the cemetery gate, might join and follow. The procession extended from the John Gates house east of the cemetery gate to the Granville Road, then to the Winsted Road and back past the flagpole to the cemetery gate.

In the cemetery the different divisions took positions in circles around the speakers' platform. So far as could be seen by the presiding officer there was a solid mass of people from the main drive to the stone wall at the west side of the cemetery.

State Librarian Godard introduced Lieutenant Governor Rogers as Past President General of the National Society, Sons of the American Revolution, who presided.

Probably the decoration of the 76 graves of Revolutionary Soldiers was the most impressive event of the day. Edward P. Jones gave a brief statement regarding the 356 Hartland men who fought in the Revolutionary War. Seventy-six Boy Scouts decorated the graves of 76 Revolutionary Soldiers buried in this cemetery, and a firing squad fired a salute over the grave of Captain Israel Jones. This was followed by twelve girl trumpeters who blew Taps from the cemetery; twelve Boy Scouts who answered from the belfry—three blowing north, three south, three east and three west, and one bugler who blew Echo Taps from a distance.

The millstone, the bronze tablet and the Charter Oak tree were presented and accepted, and Governor Trumbull gave an address in which he paid a glowing tribute to the people of Hartland for what they have done. At the conclusion of his address a sudden shower dispersed the crowd. The rain, however, stopped as suddenly as it started, and "The Exodus to Ohio" was held on the Green as scheduled, the boys of the 4-H Clubs and the Girl Scouts in costume representing the settlers starting for Ohio.

Not an accident nor a delay occurred in any of the formations to mar the performance. One of the state officers in writing of the celebration said, "Bunker Hill Day was a great success for Hartland; everybody surprised, happy and proud. Not a ripple to mar the dignified gathering so carefully planned and successfully executed. It was fine."

The letters and figures at the right of the names indicate on a map of Hartland prepared by Mr. David N. Gaines where the soldiers lived.

In the manuscript prepared for this occasion, from which the foregoing list was taken is also indicated where the soldier was buried so far as known. This and other information has been omitted from this program because of lack of space.

In the formation of the foregoing "Old Continental Army" the Hartland soldiers are impersonated by 356 boy scouts under the command of Scout Executive Frederick C. Hill of Hartford. The scouts arrived in East Hartland in the forenoon and pitched camp at Gould's Lakes. Governor Trumbull was their guest at lunch which they prepared, cooked and served.
